Highway Police.

On Monday a resident of this city was returning from a business trip in the country. He was met on one of the plank roads by a man in a buggy with a sled bore.

The buggy man had in his vehicle a double-barrel shot gun. He halted and called to the citizen to stop and give his name, residence and business.

The latter asked his reasons, and he answered, "I am authorized to inquire into the business of all traveling persons." The citizen then asked him if he was a deputy of the Surveyor of Customs, to which he gave an affirmative, but somewhat evasive answer.

Whereupon, our city friend showed to him the papers of his business, which he examined minutely, detaining him for more than a quarter of an hour.

Our city friend then pressed on him the question as to his authority, and after an effort at evasion he answered that he was appointed by the County Court of this county, which convinced the gentleman that he had been illegally detained.

This citizen is of the non-resistant persuasion and neutral in politics, as he told his self-constituted patrol in answer to the question as to how he stood in relation to the present issue. No violence was used by the man in the buggy, who may have been playing off a practical joke, but such things are liable to cause a collision, as all our citizens are not non-combatants.

Heller's Concert.

The concert on Monday next, will be a grateful and happy relief to the long-quieted city has experienced during the past months, and inasmuch as we are to have an opportunity afforded us on the occasion of hearing music, such as is rarely offered to the public, we believe we may safely predict a crowded auditorium.

Mr. Robert Heller is now conceded to be the ablest and most finished performer upon the piano-forte at present on this continent, and it is the opinion of those who have been permitted to hear him of late, that he will presently deprive even the great European celebrities of their hard-earned laurels. In addition to Mr. H.'s wonderful instrumentation, the concert will offer some delightful and superior vocal music.

BENEFIT OF MRS. WELSH EDWARDS.

FRIDAY, AUG. 28th.—When will be presented the new comic drama, entitled "The Republicans of Bree," in which the charming comedienne will appear, together with Mr. T. M. Downen, Mr. Welsh Edwards, Claude Hamilton, and Mrs. Frank Graham. Mr. Wood Benson, who, it will be remembered, was a great favorite here in the early days of the Theatre, has kindly volunteered for this occasion only, and will appear as Cousin Joe, in the laughable farce of the Rough Diamond. Mrs. Welsh Edwards enacting the part of Cousin Margery.

Wood Benson, in compliance to the wishes of a number of his friends, will sing the favorite comic song, "Think of your Head in the Morning." With such a bill of fare, it will be strange if the fair banderilla is not greeted with a bumper.

DRY GOODS.—The old established house of Meers, James Traube & Co., Main street, have received a fresh and fine stock of fall and winter dry goods, which they offer at low prices exclusively for cash.

There is no house in all the land of higher repute or more honorable standing than Traube & Co., or where purchasers may more implicitly rely upon being dealt with fairly and correctly.

THE COWARD FACTION.—The New York Times, an intemperate Black Republican organ, of course, clamors loudly for the total suppression of the New York Daily News. It is not content with having the circulation of the paper cut off, but demands its utter extinction.

The Republican party is very active, trying to suppress free speech and the free press, and it has been partially successful, but it will find it harder work to suppress a free people.

WE think Adam's Express Company

for files of the latest New Orleans and Memphis papers.

Thanks to John Cornwall, Esq., for late Nashville and Richmond papers.

The best photographs of Beauregard, Davis and Lee, are at Elrod's, No. 400 Main street, August 27.

The Attack on the Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27. The severe newspaper satirists upon the members of the Cabinet are regarded here as attacks upon the country, and those who make them are now suspected of being in the interests of the Secessionists.

We presume the agent of the Associated Press who forwarded the above language that he was doing something formidable. The fact is he is a poor shot and a pensioner of the War Department whose opinions are of no possible consequence.

The above is from the Cincinnati Commercial, a sensation sheet, that denounced (honest) Simon Cameron, head of the War Department. From the tone of the Washington dispatch it is apparent that the "censors" were about to be applied to the Commercial concern, which, to keep up appearances, is very abusive of the South and Southern papers, the Courier in particular. It pretends to be extremely loyal, and threatens the utter demolition of the South. Here is a characteristic paragraph from the Commercial, a concern that desires the freedom of the slave, and the equality of the races:

"The slave is the most active of the enemies of the Government who have swarmed in Washington City from the beginning of our civil war troubles. The house of Mrs. Gwin has been notorious as a den of spies."

It is reported that the secret portion of the Paducah police have dispatched a delegation to Cairo, Ky., to see if any arms, including three 60-caliber snipers, are in the hands of the secessionists. The house of Mrs. Gwin has been notorious as a den of spies.

East Tennessee All Right.

We learn from the Nashville papers that four full regiments of infantry for the Confederate service have been raised in East Tennessee, including those five companies from Greene county, the home of the traitor Andy Johnson. They have also raised six or eight fine cavalry companies in that part of the State. We add the following from the Memphis Appeal:

The Hon. Geo. W. Bridges, who has been an intense Union man, and was a candidate for the United States Congress in the late election, advised Col. Carroll of his intention to raise a regiment of volunteers from among the Unionists of his district and enter the active service of the Confederate States.

We have reason to believe that there is great diversity of opinion among the Union members of the Legislature, some favoring coercion, others neutrality, and others opposed to voting either for or against the Lincoln war. A meeting of the Unionists is to be held in Frankfort on next Monday, when we will doubtless discover indications of the "irrepressible conflict" among the conditional and unconditional Union men.

The Union members of Congress from this State are requested to meet in Frankfort, on Monday next, for the purpose, it is supposed, of securing from the Legislature an endorsement of their course in Congress. It is also intimated that they are needed in Frankfort to whip into the ranks certain doubtful Union members of the Legislature.

We learn from the Fort Smith Times that Capt. Albert Pike has raised a battalion of Seminoles, and an independent company of Crooks, to operate in Kansas; also that the Choctaw and Chickasaw regiments will also go to Kansas. The whole force to be under the command of Gen. D. H. Cooper.

We understand that Garrett Davis has returned from Washington, and states that not only will the troops at Camp Dick Robinson not be disbanded, but on the contrary increased. We presume that this is probably the response Mr. Lincoln has given to the Commissioners from this State.

The Indianapolis Sentinel says Rousseau's Brigade, 1,000 strong, passed over the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad to St. Louis on Monday, all safe. Yes, they are safe at Camp Joe Holt.

AN IMPORTANT DOCUMENT.

The Nelson Arrest—His Treatment by the Confederates—A Letter to the President—Davis' Reply—Nelson Advises the Union Men to Submit.

The Knoxville Whig, of the 24th, contains the printed address of Hon. Thos. A. R. Nelson to the people of East Tennessee. It occupies two columns of the Whig, and is a most interesting document, in stating the causes which led to his flight, the mode of his arrest, the reasons for his Unionism, with which the reader is already familiar, he says:

While on the way to Richmond, I had some conversation with a portion of the Tennessee delegation to the 8th March Congress, and during my stay there was visited by various members of Congress and other public men connected with the Southern Confederacy. The intense solicitude which was expressed, especially by the most prominent and distinguished of the original Secessionists, who, without any request on my part, volunteered their kind offices, was a curious and interesting sight.

Acting under this changed conviction, believing that, if I were retained as a prisoner, or punished with death, under any circumstances, it would be a great advantage to the cause of the Union, I have decided to remain in the hands of the Confederates, and to submit to their treatment.

State Rights.

1. State sovereignties were established by the Declaration of Independence in 1776—their existence proclaimed by the Confederation of 1787—definitely acknowledged by Great Britain to each of the States in 1782—and recognized in the Constitution of 1787.

2. In the creation of the Federal Government the States exercised the highest act of sovereignty, and they may, if they please, repeat the proof of their sovereignty by its annihilation. The principle of State sovereignty is inherent in the people and Territory of a State; but the Union has no inherent sovereignty like the States, it is not self-constituted, it is conventional.—(John Taylor of Caroline, Va.)

3. That the several States composing the United States of America, and united on the principles of unlimited submission to the General Government, but, that by compact under the style and compact of a Constitution for the United States, and of an inducement thereto, they constituted a Federal Government for special purposes, delegates to the several States still retain the ultimate power of sovereignty—the power by which they ordained and established the Constitution, and which can rightfully alter, modify, or abolish at pleasure. Whenever this power resides, there is the sovereignty to be found.—(John C. Calhoun.)
